Working Together

By Wendy Overturf

As stated in this document from the Center for Appropriate Dispute Resolution in Special Education (CADRE), "all parents can and should participate meaningfully in their children's education, including those whose children receive special education services. The value of parent participation has been recognized under law since 1975, most recently as the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act (Coots, 2007). Many scholars and professionals in the field of special education have explored various approaches to collaboration since then, and research has demonstrated the benefits for all parties involved: from children and their families, to teachers and principals, to district administrators and the communities they serve."

CADRE's major emphasis is encouraging the use of mediation, facilitation, and other collaborative processes as strategies for resolving disagreements between parents and schools about children's special education programs and their support services. CADRE supports parents, educators, administrators, attorneys and advocates so they may understand and benefit from the full continuum of dispute resolution options that can prevent and resolve conflict. Ultimately, this leads to informed partnerships that focus on results for children and youth.

With this emphasis in mind, CADRE has developed The Working Together Series. This series includes five interactive self-directed on-line courses. This series is for family members and educators and includes the following courses:

Course 1: Introduction to the Working Together Series

Course 2: IEP Meetings and Beyond

Course 3: Listening and Responding Skills

Course 4: Managing and Responding to Emotions

Course 5: Focusing on Interests to Reach Agreement

These courses provide families and educators with numerous strategies for working together and resolving conflicts. Anyone supporting children may benefit from this series. However, the setting in which collaborative problem solving and conflict resolution takes place within this series is typically the IEP meeting. A facilitator guide and other materials and resources go along with each course to offer additional learning opportunities. Spanish versions of the courses are expected to be released soon.

Parent-school communication is the foundation for successful collaboration and this resource provides an excellent tool for creating an educational environment that supports the abilities of all children.

Managing Anxious Kids During the Holidays

The holiday season can be a happy and enjoyable time for families, but it can also be an extremely busy one, commonly adding holiday stress and anxiety to children during school vacations. During this time of year, there are lots of fun and meaningful activities going on, both at home and at school. While that can be a positive thing for kids, enriching their lives with much-loved traditions and rituals, the reality is that sometimes in all of the hustle and bustle, their schedules and routines are disrupted, bedtimes are pushed back, and social skills are put to the test.

In this blog post, you will find some seasonal tips for helping children (and parents) survive this season enjoy this time of year.

Online Resources: Communication

Center for Parent Information and Resources \(CPIR\)

The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) strongly supports parents' right to be involved in the special education their child receives. As IDEA states: Almost 30 years of research and experience has demonstrated that the education of children with disabilities can be made more effective by... strengthening the role and responsibility of parents and ensuring that families ... have meaningful opportunities to participate in the education of their children at school and at home. This website provides many resources for parents so that they can be an active participant in the IEP process

Wisconsin Statewide Parent-Educator Initiative \(WSPEI\)

WSPEI is all about partnerships. Its goal is to help families and school districts find or create the resources that will help them build positive working relationships that lead to shared decision making and better outcomes for the student. It supports increased sharing of information among families, schools, projects, organizations and agencies through networking meetings, conferences, person-to-person contact, and media.

How Smooth is Your Ride? The Importance of Self Care Webinar 12/19/18

In this webinar, participants will be guided through a tool for self-assessment to determine how in balance their lives are currently in eight different areas:

- personal development
- career or life work
- money and finances
- health and well-being
- relationships and romance
- friends and family
- recreation and fun
- physical environment.

The subject of self-care will be examined, its importance and strategies shared to assist participants in making improvements in this area.

Presenter: Jodi Anderson is the Family Engagement Coordinator for the Wisconsin Deafblind Technical Assistance Project (WDBTAP). She is mom to two special needs boys and also works full time in addition to her position at WDBTAP. She understands firsthand the importance of incorporating a self-care routine into busy and often challenging lives.

Communication Options for Families

Families and schools have a “built-in” partnership with the child as the focus. This partnership will grow when parents and school staff work together. Disagreements may happen but being able to work together improves a child’s education. The Wisconsin Statewide Parent Educator Initiative (WSPEI) has developed a resource for parents that may assist them with communication and collaboration with their child’s school.

Communication Options for Families briefly outlines:

What can you do if questions or concerns arise?

What can you do in the IEP meeting?

What if concerns are not fully resolved in the IEP meeting?

Next Steps: What can be done if these attempts at solving problems don’t work?

(This document is also available in Spanish and Hmong)

Given the nature and number of people who might be at the child’s IEP meeting, parents may not know who to contact if they have questions or concerns after the meeting.

With that in mind, another included resource is a chart which parents can complete with school and district level contact information. Also included is WI DPI contact information. Many districts complete this form for the parents and give it to them at the IEP meeting as many concerns can best be addressed at the local level.

In addition to the contact information noted on the chart, WI FACETS also provides support to families. WI FACETS has “Help Desk” staff that are available to assist parents with questions about programs, services and resources. The staff can also provide parents with information and referrals to other programs/agencies. Although WI FACETS does not provide legal advice or legal representation the staff can help parents brainstorm options and solutions. WI FACETS Help Desk can be reached at 414-374-4645 or toll-free at 877-374-0511.

Communicating with Families across Cultures: An Investigation of Teacher Perceptions and Practices

Article Link

ABSTRACT: Increasing diversity in the student population intensifies the need for and the difficulties of establishing culturally sensitive and meaningful communication between teachers and parents. This study examined the practices of early childhood and elementary teachers concerning culturally sensitive home-school communication. As a second phase of a multi-phase research design, focus group discussions were conducted with 21 participants. Discussions centered on the teachers’ understanding of familial influences on learning and their actual communication patterns with parents. Seven themes were identified related to such issues as: defining culture; exploring the relationship between culture, class, and child-rearing; recognizing one’s own biases; and reaching out to parents in a culturally sensitive manner. Implications for educators working with families from diverse cultures are discussed.
